Amy Hadfield

Avid Editor

Profile

Amy is originally from New Zealand where she worked her way up to be one of the most senior editors at Warner Brothers. She also has years of experience in London where she has built up a strong, loyal client base. She is an outstanding editor, in part due to her background in directing and producing originally which ensures she often lands lead editor roles. Amy has a huge passion for storytelling and amazingly strong attention to detail. Also, a great eye for comedy and she always seems to manage to pick something from a scene that no one else has thought of! She is fast, and therefore comfortable working under tight deadlines. Amy always strives to deliver content that both herself and the client are proud of.
